What's your background?

My background has been in both electronics and computers and I ended by career as a solutions architect. Having spent fourteen years in the RAF I very quickly learned the lessons of teamwork and so belonging to Rotary ensures that I can fit in to the various projects at hand.

Why did you join Rotary?

I originally joined the Rotary Club of Kimbolton Castle to meet new people and to join in a range of social activities, as well as to give something back to the local community where I lived. When I moved to this area I applied to join the Royston Rotary Club for the same reasons and I haven't been disappointed. I have now been a member here for about six years.

What do you do in Rotary?

I am a member of the Communications committee which is concerned with publicising the Club's achievements to the local community. I am also the webmaster for the Club's website which keeps me pretty busy. As with most members, I throw my weight into the various activities that the Club performs for the community such as the Kite Festival, The Swimathon and the Father Christmas tours of the area.

What do you enjoy most about being a member of Royston Rotary Club?

The humour and good natured banter that is always present at our weekly meetings. Because our members are drawn from such a diverse range of professions and industry the conversations can be very stimulating when listening to such expert views.

In recent years the Club has welcomed lady members and that has brought a refreshingly new dynamic to our meetings and which more fully reflects the community in which we all live.
